

Explosive debut album from Habadekuk

This month marks the release "Hopsadaddy" – the long-awaited, energy-packed debut album from Habadekuk. The release takes place at Odense Folk Festival, where the nine-piece folk band will have champagne and confetti flowing.

Powerful horns, toe-tapping fiddle and contagious rhythms characterise the album, which catapults folk music well and truly into the 21st century. "We've mixed elements from salsa, jazz and folk to inject new energy into old dance tunes. Now the tunes can still get the party started," says violinist Kristian Bugge.

Following huge success at home and abroad, this young and lively nine-man band are now more ready than ever to take to the stage with their fast-paced polkas.

Habadekuk have already wowed audiences at Spot Festival and Danish Music Award Folk, as well as at festivals in Poland, Sweden, Finland and Norway. They won NORD '09, the Nordic folk music championships in Sweden, broadcasted in Swedish, Finnish and Norwegian Radio.
